Factbook - January 31, 2011

Equity Market Update

Indian equity markets saw a weak opening to the year 2011, retreating 10.6% in the month of January 2011, significantly underperforming both global and regional peers. BSE Sensex ended at 18327.76 levels, down by 2181.33 points, for the month.

The main triggers for sell-off were inflation headwinds, expose of corruption scandals and concern over rising current account deficit and oil price. Inflation, more specifically Food Inflation, has come to pinch most of the Emerging Market economies, and India was no different. Lack of control over Inflation threatened to derail India's growth trajectory and these macro concerns, more than the micro, drove the markets down as 3Q earnings have been in line with expectations. Despite all the earnings releases, the RBI meet on January, 25 remained the main talking points in India in January. FII's exited the Indian equity markets steadily in January. FII's sold $1.24 bn (net) in Indian equities after putting in $ 29 bn in the year 2010.

Industrial Production data continued to be volatile in India, with November industrial output slowing to 2.7%, much below the consensus. The dip was mostly due to high base and a de-growth in post-festive season consumption. In line with majority expectations, the RBI raised repo rate and reverse repo rate by only 25 bps. But the guidance was worrying - RBI raised its inflation forecast and sounded cautious in its growth outlook for FY12. December Inflation came in line with estimate at 8.4%. But rising food prices both on the domestic and global front made Inflation the key concern in India, given its sticky outlook in CY11

Global cues remained broadly positive. The intensifying European debt crisis appeared to take back a step back from the brink. US Stock markets rallied the longest rally since May 2007, buoyed by optimism about corporate earnings and economic recovery in US economy. While on one side, there was a surge in US indices, on the other side many of the emerging market stocks declined on concern emanating over rising inflationary pressure.

All commodities stayed upwards. Copper jumped to its highest ever level. Crude Oil price observed volatile movements. Crude oil prices corrected to US$ 85 amid speculation that the monetary tightening by China may curb the demand. However, it bounced back to US$ 92 level on the back of anti-government rioting in Egypt. Euro and Japanese Yen slipped against dollar. Indian Rupee slipped by 2.68% against dollar amid sustained foreign fund withdrawals from Indian equity market.

Corporate earnings for Q3 December 2010 have been in line with expectations. Recently, Indian equity market has underperformed to its most peers due to concerns over potential impact of inflation, monetary tightening, political uncertainty and persistence of tight liquidity. But the underlying growth for broad economy and strong corporate earnings ensure downside support for the markets from here.

Debt Market Update

The month of January 2011, RBI hiked the REPO rate by 25bps, reverse REPO rate by 25bps and left cash reserve ratio (CRR) untouched. Market was expecting a 25bps hike in both REPO and reverse REPO rate. The policy rate hike will help in anchoring inflationary expectation. Inflation remains the primary concern for the central bank. After a slight moderation between August'10 and November'10, inflation peaked again in December'10 primarily on the back of rise in food prices. Non Food Manufacturing Inflation has remained sticky and above the medium term trend of 4 percent but the underlying momentum in this segment has been positive reflecting buoyant demand conditions. The base line projection for WPI Inflation is increased to 7% by March 2011 from 5.5%. RBI has also highlighted the limits of monetary policy in dealing with the structural pressures on inflation and the challenge to monetary policy from the persistence of a large fiscal deficit. The RBI slightly revised higher its GDP growth projection to 8.5% with an "upside bias" for FY11 versus 8.5% earlier. RBI expects GDP growth to decline in FY12 owing to adverse base effects linked to agriculture, and inflation to resume its moderating trend in the first quarter of FY12. The Liquidity Shortage is outside the comfort zone of RBI but is expected to ease as government balances adjust according to the expenditure schedule. The additional liquidity support under LAF has been extended up to April 8, 2011. The stance of this monetary policy is to contain the spillover of high food and fuel inflation while maintaining an interest rate regime that is consistent with price and financial stability. The hike of only 25 bps in policy rates also gives it the flexibility to quickly react to any further build up in inflationary pressures.

Industrial production grew by 2.7% YoY in November, which is well below market expectation of 6.5% due to lower growth in intermediate goods (2.4%), slow down in consumer goods (-3.1% vs. 9.6% last month) and fewer working days in November. Going forward we expect the IIP growth to remain low due to high base effect and tight monetary condition. WPI inflation in December was at 8.43% (provisional), which is largely inline with market expectation. The primary inflation increased to 16.5% YoY vs. 13% last month due to increase in vegetable prices. The fuel inflation remained high at 11.2% YoY due to sharp rise in market driven fuels. Spike in crude and metal prices remain key risk to inflation.

We expect RBI to hike policy rates further by 50-75bps in FY11. The short-term interest rates were at elevated level due tight liquidity condition. We expect the short-term rates to remain volatile with bearish bias till March due to tight liquidity condition and higher supply of bank CDs. The 10-year yield is expected to remain volatile and trade in a narrow range of 8.1% to 8.3% in near term.
